You just have to love to write and do it beautifully. Grammar is important, but you can always pull it up. In the meantime, you can use Orthogram or other spell check services to check your mistakes. What you need: a laptop or PC, a keyboard, the Internet, fingers and creativity. I think most people will find that now. So only you can get in the way. What's the job When I tell someone I write for money, they tell me something like this: "How? You don't have a higher education, do you?" Yeah, it's real. In our age, you don't have to miss the best years of your life in high school and then cramp to look for work. You can learn everything on the Internet. For example, we have interesting, professional courses on copywriting, which will help to reach a new level. You will really spend your time on education. In the short term, learn what the teacher explains for years. Fast, distance learning - rules! The main content of the sites - articles. When we look for something about the disease, linoleum or tailoring, what do we need? Right - good material to help solve the problem, to teach. If the site is empty and the article is not structured, we close the page, go further on the list. So this is our task - to fill the Internet space with this information.
